

GDP and Life Expectancy in the Caribbean

DSC102 Lesson 9 Hands On
Melissa Gonzalez
11th May 2021

GDP per capita

- In 1952, the lowest GDP was in the Dominican Republic, while the highest the same year was Cuba.
- By 2007, Haiti had the lowest GDP, while Puerto Rico had taken the lead.

Life Expectancy

- Life expectancy has risen across the board, leveling off in Cuba in the 1980s and in Jamaica from the 1980s onwards.
- All shown Caribbean nations have maintained higher than world average life expectancies, other than Haiti. Haiti's life expectancy has increased at a similar rate, but is still below the world average.

